Keyware and Worldline sign Technical Payment Service Provider Agreement

Brussels, Belgium – June 22nd, 2015 – Keyware (EURONEXT Brussels: KEYW) today announces the extension of its partnership with Worldline in the area of electronic payment transaction processing. As of today, Keyware will, among other things, be able to offer its own commercial solutions for the acceptance of Bancontact/MisterCash cards and credit cards, whilst Worldline will take care of the authorisations.

At the end of June 2013, Keyware and Worldline signed a dual partnership for the marketing of payment terminals on the one hand, and the provision of Worldline acquiring transaction services on the other hand. As part of that agreement, Keyware buys payment terminals produced by Worldline which are then customised for each client and provided through lease or sale contracts. In addition, the agreement allows Keyware to offer certain acquiring services on behalf and for the account of Worldline.

Further building on this cooperation, Keyware and Worldline have now decided to extend their existing partnership. Keyware now becomes a Technical Payment Service Provider for Worldline.

This new payment solution will enable Keyware to offer acquiring services not only to clients with Worldline payment terminals, but also to merchants with fixed, portable or mobile payment terminals of other vendors. The payment terminals are linked to Keyware's payment host, which will submit the payment transactions over a secure connection to the Worldline acquiring servers.

In this way, Keyware can directly offer subscriptions based on its own commercial solutions to clients for payments made with Bancontact/MisterCash, V Pay or Maestro. Additionally, the new infrastructure will allow Keyware to offer acquiring contracts for the processing of credit card transactions with Visa, MasterCard, Amex, JCB, Diners Club, CUP, etc.
